

Digital Commodities Commends Ripple - SEC Resolution, Backs XRP and Ecosystem Growth

Vancouver, British Columbia--(Newsfile Corp. - March 26, 2025) - Digital Commodities Capital Corp. (CSE: RIPP) (OTCQB: BCBCF) (FSE: W04) (the "Company"), commends the landmark settlement between Ripple Labs and the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) on March 24th, 2025, marking the end of a years-long legal battle that had cast regulatory uncertainty over the XRP token and broader digital asset market.

This resolution represents a significant victory not just for Ripple, but for the entire digital asset space - bringing clarity, confidence, and renewed momentum to a market long constrained by regulatory ambiguity. The implications of the decision are far-reaching. It reaffirms the viability of utility-driven digital assets, strengthens the legal foundation for non-security token classifications, and sets a tone for more balanced engagement between innovators and regulators.

In light of this development, Digital Commodities confirms it currently holds 103,000 XRP tokens in its corporate treasury and is actively evaluating further exposure to Ripple and Ripple-affiliated assets, technologies, and complementary companies within the XRP ecosystem as part of its broader strategy to build long-term value through diversified digital assets.

Brayden Sutton, CEO of Digital Commodities, commented: "This is a defining moment for the crypto space. Ripple's resolution with the SEC provides a roadmap for the kind of clarity and cooperation this industry needs to truly scale. At Digital Commodities, we believe strongly in the future of compliant, utility-based digital assets - and XRP is a prime example. We are pleased to already hold some XRP in our treasury, and we'll continue to explore opportunities that complement Ripple's ecosystem and align with our long-term investment thesis."

Digital Commodities Capital continues to target high-conviction opportunities across digital assets, hard commodities, and resource-backed ventures - with a commitment to identifying assets that combine innovation, regulatory alignment, and real-world utility.
