DESCRIPTION AND OVERVIEW OF BUSINESS

Canadian Imperial Venture Corp. is a junior mining exploration company currently listed on the NEX division of the TSX Venture Exchange, trading under the symbol "CQV.H". On May 15, 2015, trading in the shares of the Company were suspended.

Currently there are no mineral reserves delineated on the properties in which the Company has an interest. Therefore there are no producing properties, and consequently no operating income or cash flow. In the past, Canadian Imperial Venture has accessed, and in the future will continue to access, the equities markets to raise the funds needed to continue exploration programs on its various property holdings and to meet its ongoing working capital requirements. Because of the magnitude of the expenditures needed to fund exploration programs, the Company also makes use of joint ventures to share the costs and risks associated with exploring some of its mineral properties.

The current market conditions and volatility increases the uncertainty of the Company's ability to continue as a going concern given the need to both curtail expenditures and to raise additional funds. The Company is experiencing, and has experienced, negative operating cash flows. The Company will continue to search for new or alternate sources of financing but anticipates that the current market conditions may impact the ability to source such funds.

There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to continue to raise funds in which case the Company may be unable to meet its obligations. Should the Company be unable to realize on its assets and discharge its liabilities in the normal course of business, the net realizable value of its assets may be materially less than the amounts recorded on the Company's statement of financial position.

RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The increased loss for the three month period ended August 31, 2016 can be attributed to costs incurred to lift the trading suspension of the Company's shares.

The Company incurred management fees of $10,000 and $40,000 for the three and nine month periods ended August 31, 2016 compared to $15,000 and $45,000 for the three and nine month periods August 31, 2015. The decrease cost can be attributed to the inactivity of the Company.

Professional fees were $30,064 and $2,832 for the three month periods ended August 31, 2016 and 2015 respectively. The increased costs can be attributed to various legal, accounting and audit fees associated with the reporting requirements of a publicly traded company. The Company has been delinquent in its regulatory filings and the costs incurred in the recent quarter were associated with bring the filings to a current status.

There were no costs associated with rent, salaries and wages, office related expenditures as the Company has dramatically reduced costs. The Company anticipates minimal costs going forward in these areas.

The Company recognized $10,000 in transfer agent fees during the three months ended August 31, 2016 compared to $nil for the comparable three month period during the last fiscal year. These cost are associated with removing the trading suspension imposed on the Company's shares. As the Company did not have sufficient funds, no costs were recorded in prior periods.

Total assets

The change in total assets over the three year period from 2013-2016 is largely the result of changes in the cash balance, changes in the valuation of the Company's exploration and evaluation assets and the write down of a reclamation bond. During the year ended November 30, 2014, the Company wrote –down the value of its exploration and evaluation assets to $nil. During the year ended November 30, 2015, the Company also wrote-down the value of a reclamation bond held in trust to $nil. Total assets of the Company were $1,713 as at August 31, 2016 compared to assets of $326 as at November 30, 2015. The slight increase is a result of tax credits claimed on various expenses.

It is the nature of junior exploration companies that there are no sales or revenue. There can be significant variances in the Company's reported loss from quarter to quarter arising from factors that are difficult to anticipate in advance or to predict from past results. For example, when an asset of the Company is determined to be impaired, the results in the recording of amount to be written down, can be quite large in any given quarter; such as was the case in the three month period ended November 30, 2015 with the write-down of the reclamation deposit ($20,257).

Mineral property expenditures can vary from quarter-to-quarter depending on when option payments are due and the stage of the exploration program (e.g. drilling may slow down for a period of time while results are analyzed, resulting in lower costs during that period).

General and administration costs can also vary quarter-to-quarter depending on the nature of the expenditure and if the Company has the available resources to fund these activities. As the Company is in the process of lifting a cease trade order, additional professional and regulatory costs were incurred during the three months ended August 31, 2016.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

Canadian Imperial Venture's does not generate any cash flow from operations. The Company's financial success relies on management's ability to find economically recoverable reserves in its exploration and evaluation interests.

In order to finance its exploration activities and corporate overhead, historically the Company has been dependent on investor sentiment remaining positive towards the junior exploration sector generally, and towards Canadian Imperial Venture in particular, so that funds can be raised through the sale of the Company's securities. Many factors have an influence on investor sentiment, including a positive climate from investors to support junior exploration companies, a company's track record and the experience and calibre of a company's management. There is no certainty that equity funding will be available at the times and in the amounts required to fund the Company's activities. Note 1 of the Company's 2015 audited financial statements further discusses the going concern issue. The financial statements do not include any adjustments that might result from these uncertainties.

Canadian Imperial Venture has in the past, financed its activities through equity financings. It is anticipated as general sentiment towards junior exploration companies turn positive and the price of precious metals stabilize, the Company can raise the necessary capital to secure and finance exploration work project.

There are no other sources of financing that have been arranged by the Company. From time-to-time, the CEO of the Company will loan funds to settle amounts owing to certain creditors.

The Company's working capital deficiencies for the periods ended August 31, 2016 and 2015 was $(451,434) and $(269,415) respectively. The increase can be attributed to the Company's inability to pay its creditors. The Company hopes to negotiate some form of debt settlement with its various creditors; these agreements will be crucial to the success of the Company in raising working capital for future exploration work.

The Company has no commitments for capital expenditures.

OUTLOOK

It is anticipated that in the continued and foreseeable future, Canadian Imperial Venture will rely on the equity markets to meet its financing needs. Should cash flow build through exploration success, the Company will be in a position to finance projects from cash flow.

Without continued external funding to finance further exploration on its property interests, there is substantial doubt as to the Company's ability to operate as a going concern. Although Canadian Imperial Venture has been successful in raising funds to date, there can be no assurance that additional funding will be available in the future. The financial statements do not reflect the adjustments to the carrying values of assets and liabilities that would be necessary if the Company were unable to achieve successful exploration results or obtain adequate financing.

CRITICAL ACCOUNTING ESTIMATES

As at August 31, 2016, the Company was a venture issuer. Canadian Imperial Venture prepares its financial statements in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standard ("IFRS") and requires management to make estimates and assumptions which affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the reporting period.

Significant areas requiring the use of management estimates relate to the useful lives of capital assets, reserves used in calculating depletion, accretion and ceiling tests, the assumptions used in determining the fair value of asset retirement costs and the assumptions used in determining the fair value of non-cash stock-based compensation. Due to the inherent uncertainty involved with making such estimates, actual results reported in future years could differ from these estimates.
