Lindbergh 3 came on production in late October. Lloyd 2 produced about 8,000 barrels from mid-September through until late October (Argo's share 1500 barrels) when the horizontal well bore appears to have collapsed dropping production to near zero. Operational well repair attempts in November and December have not been successful but the oil well continues to produce at very low levels.

Argo's December oil production was approximately 3,367 barrels averaging 109 barrels per day.
