Netco Silver (dba: Brisio Innovations) Appoints Danny Robinson to Advisory Board

VANCOUVER, BC, JANUARY 14, 2014 – Netco Silver Inc. (TSX.V: NEI), doing business as Brisio Innovations (the “Company”), is pleased to announce the addition of Mr. Danny Robinson to the advisory board of the Company.

Mr. Robinson is an experienced tech entrepreneur and executive and is the founder & CEO of Perch, the first hands-free, always-on video communication app company. Prior to starting Perch, Danny was CEO of the BC Innovation Council (BCiC), a government corporation supporting entrepreneurship in the Province of British Columbia, and co-founder of Bootup Labs, an internet seed accelerator, which, during Danny’s time there, invested and mentored eight new companies, including Summify (acquired by Twitter) and Layerboom (acquired by Joyent). Danny is Chairman and a co-founder of Strutta, a social promotions platform for developing and managing interactive contests and promotions. Danny was also a co-founder and CEO of Peerflix, a DVD swapping service, and Spinway, a free dial-up internet service provider (ISP).

As an experienced entrepreneur, Danny works to promote British Columbia as the tech center he believes it can be by connecting local entrepreneurs with Silicon Valley-based investors and mentors. To this end, he co-organizes the popular tech mixer, Launch Party Vancouver.

The Company’s CEO, Paul Andreola, states: “That such a highly visible and respected Vancouver tech entrepreneur such as Danny would choose to become a part of our growing team is a testament to the strength of our business model and vision for growing Brisio into the future. We look forward to working with Danny and know that his expert advice will be invaluable as we work to make Brisio a leader in the app-aggregation world.”

About the Company

The Company is focused on the acquisition, development and marketing of software applications for mobile computing devices, including smart phones, tablets and wearable computers.
