AMP Roundtable Series: Episode #1, "Medical Cannabis in Germany."

The first episode in the Roundtable Series, "Medical Cannabis in Germany", is sponsored by CC Pharma GmbH.

In the hour-long roundtable episode, Dr. Franjo Grotenhermen, a practicing German doctor and advisor to the German government regarding medical cannabis, joins Dr. Stefan Feuerstein, Director and President of AMP, to discuss the current situation in medical research and application of medical cannabis in Germany.

Mr. Holger Scholze, a well-known German stock market expert, will act as the moderator for the discussion.

Topics:

- Definition of cannabis and its history as a medicine,
- The current situation of medical cannabis in Germany,
- Which medical conditions may have benefited from cannabis?
- What clinical research is required to determine if cannabis has an effect?
- What medical conditions are covered by the German government insurance system, and what are the obstacles for patients to be reimbursed?
- What is the doctor and pharmacist's reaction to the introduction of medical cannabis as a medicine?
- What are the political and medical factors influencing access to patients?
- What are the supply and demand issues affecting patients?
- Outlook for medical cannabis demand in the coming years.

Panel Members:

Dr. Franjo Grotenhermen (MD)

Born in 1957, Dr. Grotenhermen studied medicine in Cologne before achieving the title of Doctor of Medicine with the grade summa cum laude from the University of Cologne. His clinical work was in the fields of internal medicine, surgery and naturopathic medicine. His medical practice is in Steinheim (North Rhine-Westphalia), with a particular focus on naturopathic techniques and therapy using cannabis and cannabinoids.

Dr. Grotenhermen is the executive director of the Association for Cannabis as Medicine (ACM), founded in 1997, and managing director of the International Association for Cannabinoid Medicines (IACM), founded in 2000. Dr. Grotenhermen publishes the IACM newsletter, which is published online every fortnight in six languages (English, German, French, Spanish, Dutch and Italian).

Dr. Grotenhermen works at the nova-Institute in Cologne in the Department of Renewable Materials and is the author of many articles and books on the therapeutic potential of cannabis cannabinoids, their pharmacology and toxicology. He is an expert in these fields for private individuals, pharmaceutical firms, law courts and international institutions.
