Recent Developments & Outlook

The Company recently announced the completion of its name change to Justera Health Ltd. This name change signifies a transformative direction for the organization. With this strategic rebranding, the Company solidifies its transition from being primarily focused on COVID-19 and screening solutions to expanding its presence and reinforces its commitment to advancing to the health and wellness landscape.

The focus for the remainder of the year will be on expanding further into the health and wellness industry, which includes the Company set to open two new brick-and-mortar retail stores in British Columbia this year.

By venturing into physical retail stores and pharmacies, the Company aims to further enhance its revenue and profitability while solidifying a strong presence in the health and wellness Canadian market. This strategic move reflects the Company's determination to transition away from COVID-19 and embrace a growth-oriented strategy that reinvents the organization.

The Company foresees that expanding further into the health and wellness industry and opening physical retail stores will play a crucial role in its transformation and success. These significant milestones in the pipeline are set to shape the future of the Company.

"We are focused on revenue generation and have some upcoming developments in the pipeline. By expanding into the health and wellness industry and into brick-and-mortar retail locations, we are not only diversifying our offerings and increasing our accessibility to customers for Naturevan but also offering a personalized shopping experience. Our goal is to create a strong and lasting connection with our customers, providing them with the highest level of service and a wide range of health and wellness products and services, which is expected to improve company earnings," said Alex MacKay, Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Company.
