"California offers the promise of tremendous opportunities in the recreational and adult-use cannabis markets. The High Hampton team has done an excellent job of laying the groundwork to deliver on that promise, first in Coachella with a world-class cultivation and manufacturing hub to serve the largest markets in the state, and further by beginning to build our portfolio of subsidiaries in the distribution, edibles, and cannabis real estate sectors. I am excited to join High Hampton to build on that success, continue to expand our footprint across California, and integrate our subsidiaries to deliver strong economic results driven by high-quality products, along with nurturing relationships that can support advancements in therapeutic applications of cannabis. "

Tom Baird, COO of High Hampton, added:

"I am looking forward to getting into the nitty-gritty of the High Hampton cannabis operations throughout California. Finding synergies, establishing and optimizing production processes and scaling according to market demands are going to be the key near-term objectives to solidify our subsidiaries as viable contributors and create sustainable value for our shareholders."
