

Network Oncology, Inc. commences sales with one of five major public hospital buying groups to supply two of its cancer products - Paclitaxel Resolute and Oxaliplatin Resolute in Germany

Vancouver, B.C., March 17, 2015 – As part an agreement announced last month to supply a consortium of up to 70 public hospitals in Germany, Network Oncology Inc. (“Network Oncology”, “the Company”) has commenced its first sales for two of its oncology generic products. Network Oncology possesses a well-diversified portfolio of drug assets and plans to use its technical and commercial expertise to develop, launch, market and sell their portfolio of value-added products and services throughout Europe while offering significant cost savings to patients and payers.

Sean Maenpaa, CEO stated, “One of the Company’s goals has been to create an easy, seamless, and on time delivery process for the sale of our highly regarded Network Oncology products to our customers. The commencement of sales to a large group of hospitals with our products underlines how robust and reliable our supply and distribution channels have become”.

The Company is expected to launch several more oncology products in the next twelve months to broaden its portfolio and services to healthcare professionals.
