

PENNY GREEN'S TRACK RECORD: QUESTIONS FOR SHAREHOLDERS FROM GLANCE TECHNOLOGIES

April 20, 2018 – Vancouver, B.C. – Glance Technologies Inc. (CSE: GET: CN / OTCQB: GLNMF / FKT: GJT) (“Glance” or the “Company”) today cautioned shareholders that they carefully review Penny Green’s track record and her claims about creating shareholder value.

While Ms. Green remains a director of Glance, the Company terminated her consulting agreement (whereby she provided services to Glance as President) on February 20, 2018. Subsequently, Ms. Green requisitioned a shareholders’ meeting to remove all three of Glance’s independent directors and replace them with her personally selected dissident nominees (the “Green Requisition”).

Glance intends to include a complete response in its forthcoming management information circular (the “MIC”) to communications issued by Ms. Green. Glance expects to file the MIC, including a description of Glance’s excellent progress and prospects, well in advance of the contested June 12, 2018 shareholders’ meeting. Pursuant to applicable securities laws, Glance does not intend to solicit proxies for that meeting until the MIC has been filed.

Meanwhile, shareholders should carefully consider the consequences for Glance if Ms. Green’s nominees are elected, giving Ms. Green and her nominees full control of the Board of Directors of the Company (the “Board”). As Glance will further discuss below, shareholders should make sure they are fully informed about her track record.

Has Ms. Green accurately portrayed her track record in business?

One of the most important obligations of a publicly-traded company is to deliver full, true and plain disclosure to the investing public and its shareholders. Since the filing of the Green Requisition, Glance has looked closely at Ms. Green’s disclosure about herself. Investors should ask if this disclosure by Ms. Green is full, true and plain.

For example, Ms. Green’s carefully worded biography in her February 21, 2018 news release might lead readers to conclude that she played a role in the 2016 revenue and 2017 takeover of Merus Labs International Inc. (“Merus”). According to SEDI filings, Ms. Green ceased to be a director or officer of Merus as of December 19, 2011, before Merus was consistently profitable. Investors should ask if she has evidence that she contributed to the successful events that occurred five and six years, respectively, after she ceased to be a director or officer.

Moreover, Ms. Green claims a record of “business success” in her February 21, 2018 news release, but she omits reference to many of her past ventures. According to public disclosure reviewed by Glance, Ms. Green has served as a director and officer of five publicly traded companies other than Glance. On average, the share price of these five companies declined by 50% during her tenure on these boards.

Also according to public disclosure reviewed by Glance, she has served as an officer of two publicly traded companies for which she was not also a board member. During her tenure the share prices of those two companies declined by an average of 56.5%.

For further certainty, the tables below show Ms. Green’s track record with publicly traded companies other than Glance.

Ms. Green's claims regarding going public transactions

Between 2007 and 2011 the Vancouver Sun's now-retired business columnist David Baines made mention of Ms. Green repeatedly (in 11 columns) in the context of going public transactions in which she (or her law firm) was involved as a filing solicitor. This coverage is notably absent from Ms. Green's disclosure, in which she claims to be "highly sought after by media outlets."

Ms. Green claims "extensive experience in capital markets" and supports her claim with the phrase "Notably, she has been involved in the going public transactions of over 100 companies..." Glance cautions shareholders to be careful about drawing a conclusion regarding Ms. Green's business acumen based on the large volume she cites. In the view of Mr. Baines, some of these were "obvious sham companies" and "laughable business deals."

Below are excerpts (emphasis added) from three of Mr. Baines' columns mentioning Ms. Green, along with an embedded link to the full columns:

- "For the past several years [Ms. Green] has been helping promoters take their deals public on the bulletin board. Most have been extremely dubious business propositions... Asked whether she tries to assess whether her clients have any chance of commercial success, she made it clear that's not her job. 'My job is to advise them on the rules and regulations.'" (More to Doggie Water Biz Than What's On the Surface, Vancouver Sun, May 12, 2007)
- "The company's filing solicitor was Penny Green, who has provided legal services to many dubious OTC issuers, most notably K-Care Nutritional Products Ltd. K-Care purported to be marketing bottled water for dogs..." (Accounting Firm's Clients Don't Make Business Sense, Vancouver Sun, December 5, 2007)
- "With the help of Vancouver lawyer Penny Green, who facilitates grotty issues like this, Mantra [Venture Group Ltd.] filed a registration statement... Mantra's President and CEO is a former investor relations specialist named Larry Kristof. Several years ago, he had the dubious distinction of being in a parked car with several associates at Bellis Fair Mall when Bellingham police accosted them and seized $30,100 in currency which they identified as drug money... The company is now insolvent." (Former Stockbroker Leaves a Trail of Treachery, Vancouver Sun, October 4, 2008)

Questions for shareholders to ask Ms. Green

- Why did Ms. Green fail to mention she ceased to be an officer or director of Merus five and six years before the two positive events she cited?
- Is Ms. Green's claim of "business success" reasonable in the context of her service with publicly-traded companies prior to Glance?
- Why did Ms. Green omit the Vancouver Sun's coverage from her media history?
- Does Ms. Green's version of her biography represent full, true and plain disclosure?
