Item 5: Full Description of Material Change

The Company and PUF announced the formation of a technology partnership between the Company and Blox a technology company specialized in decentralized ledger technology, smart contracts and Blockchain development.

The Company will use its extensive expertise in strategic creative marketing campaigns including SEO, digital branding and other related services to create a high-quality strategic communications campaign for Blox's investor base and partners as it drives its business growth with multiple blockchain projects. The increased connectivity will facilitate the sharing of Blox news, projects and media through digital and mobile networks. This alliance also opens the door to exploring new and innovative digital business solutions.

The Company believes in the power of data to help build customer-centric initiatives in the medical technology sector. Millions of ideas are created every day, a fraction of those address an actual business need, and fewer still have the business plan to disrupt the status quo in becoming game changers in today's ever-changing markets. The Company focuses its efforts towards data-driven business solutions that put the end user in the driver seat. From access to investors, target customers and industry-leading experts, our company enables other companies to scale and succeed as global industry leaders.
