We have set up the go-forward advertising campaign for the new extractor and have begun the fine-tuning that accompanies such a program. We have received our first order from for the new alcohol-based extractor, from an international customer and hopefully the beginning of a long line of orders for this exciting new product. Our expenses increased due to the introduction of this new product, but we have maintained tight cost control so we expect the impact to be minimal.

Our CO2-based extractors continue to sell well with more units sold in the first two months of Q2 than we did for all three months of the same quarter last year. Most of the current Q2 sales were international. "
