Since over 90% of cyber-attacks originate through email, businesses and their employees need the best possible security in this area. An organization’s employees, digital assets and reputation are extremely valuable. Everything an organization needs to protect these assets is conveniently available through one company, starting with this new package. We’re excited to work with a company of the caliber of GlobeX Data, who shares our commitment to providing world-class solutions.”

Alain Ghiai, CEO of GlobeX Data said: “With a sharp increase in office employees working from home in unsecured networks, there is a sharp increase in demand for secure business solutions for remote workforce. The sharp increase in business email cyber-crime and attack targeting businesses prompted Guard Street and our Company to come up with a suite of business solutions, covering everything from email communications, document management, network security and a cyber liability insurance, to help small and large businesses and their employees all over the United States. According to the website siliconangle.com, the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation has issued a new warning that hackers are currently targeting users of Microsoft Office 365 and Google G Suite in so-called Business Email Compromise attacks (“BEC”). The warning issued on March 3, noted that the scams were costing U.S. businesses billions of dollars. We understand businesses are under tremendous strain, and we are here to help them protect their data and communications from cyber criminals.”
