

Megawatt Plans Seasonal Field Work at Tyr Including Phase 1 Drilling

VANCOUVER, BC, April 29, 2021 /CNW/ - Megawatt Lithium and Battery Metals Corp. (CSE: MEGA) (FSE: WR20) (OTC PINK: WALRF) (the "Company" or "Megawatt") is pleased to announce that it has approved a seasonal exploration program for its Tyr Silver Project in New South Wales, Australia. The tenement covers 100 units over an area of 299km² and was granted effective on the 29th of March 2018 for a period of five (5) years as a prospective tenure with a large number of known mineral occurrences and historical mining for commodities; silver, tin, arsenic, lead, zinc and tungsten.

The Program will consist of the following components:

1. continuation of data review and database construction
2. continued geochemistry, rock chip sampling and mapping
3. ground based geophysical magnetometer survey
4. drilling of high priority targets.

The planning and execution of drill target generation and identification and subsequent exploration drilling program should be completed, with drillholes sampled and analyzed to appropriate depths as to adequately understand the geology, geochemistry and stratigraphy of the area. The exploration area contains a significant amount of silver occurrences which strikes north-west containing major occurrences such as the Ecuador deposit consisting of 4710ppm silver and Torony Mine consisting of 1420ppm silver from historic exploration records.

David Thornley-Hall, CEO of Megawatt, comments: "We look forward to reviewing the results of our field program at Tyr. The data modelling will bring us one step closer to a more broad understanding of this prospective project."
