CEO Letter to Shareholders

Element was founded to enhance peoples' lives. Through our scientifically-backed approach to product development and innovation, we believe that we are in an excellent position to drive revenue growth internationally with novel and plant-based nutraceutical products.

Through our proprietary brand Rejuvenate™, we have begun by targeting the market for Sarcopenia, muscle loss due to aging. The market size for Sarcopenia is estimated to grow to up to US$3 billion by 2025¹ given the aging demographic in developed countries and a lack of remedies for muscle loss. To date, we have established direct to consumer e-commerce channels for Rejuvenate™, our products can be found in over 7,500 retail locations across North America and our vendor status agreements provide us access to 16,000 points of distribution.

But this is only the beginning. We believe that through innovation, we can increase Rejuvenate™'s dosage to develop products suitable to oncology and orthopedic patients. We will also be innovating our product for the sports nutrition protein powder category through our JAKTRX™ brand. JAKTRX™ can currently be purchased online and we plan to launch it in retail locations this fall.

Our competitive advantage in entering these target markets is that our product is backed by clinical proof and our team knows how to scale consumer packaged goods through retail channels. Over 25 peer reviewed studies support the efficacy of our products which gives us solid credibility when establishing relationships with major retailers. Additionally, our products are organically produced and plant based, which is increasingly what consumers are demanding.

I would like to extend a sincere thank you to our shareholders for their support. I firmly believe Element has a unique opportunity to disrupt major consumer markets that have not seen innovation for decades as we fulfill our mission of helping people Live Stronger and Longer.

Sincerely,

Stuart Lowther
Chief Executive Officer
