“Many investors aren’t familiar with the current opportunity in Newfoundland and Labrador, a unique jurisdiction that has not only recently generated major gold discoveries, but that also remains very underexplored.” Stated CEO Mark Scott, adding “Gander Gold acquired eight significant projects early in the Newfoundland gold rush starting in 2020, and we have now progressed from surface prospecting to drilling. Based on early indications on our Phase 1 drilling program this summer, I am confident that we have already identified structurally controlled, near-surface gold mineralization. I look forward to sharing this update with an energetic investor group on September 21.”
